Emerging conflicts between Copyright and FoEI

Conflicting human rights ....

... an how to balance them.
Every natural or legal person is entitled to the peaceful enjoyment of his possessions. No one shall be deprived of his possessions except in the public interest and subject to the conditions provided for by law and by the general principles of international law.

An injunction to install an internet filtering system is a measure of enforcement of copyright that “could potentially undermine freedom of information”, since that system might not distinguish adequately between unlawful content and lawful content, with the result that its introduction could lead to the blocking of lawful communications …

ECtHR: Conviction based on copyright law for illegally reproducing or publicly communicating copyright protected material can be regarded as an interference with the right of freedom of expression and information under Article 10 of the European Convention only if:

1. prescribed by law
2. legitimate aim ("rights of others")
3. necessary in a democratic society!
Neij and Sunde v Sweden
also FoEI

ECtHR: In the present case, the applicants put in place the means for others to impart and receive information within the meaning of Article 10 of the Convention.

The applicants’ convictions interfered with their right to freedom of expression.

Such interference breaches Article 10 unless it was “prescribed by law”, pursued one or more of the legitimate aims referred to in Article 10 § 2 and was “necessary in a democratic society” to attain such aim or aims.
Not only FoEI right under Article 10 ECHR (11 EU)
Also Copyright under Article 1, Prot. No. 1 ECHR (17, 2 EU)

Positive obligation by state to protect copyright against infringements:

“genuine, effective exercise of the rights protected by that provision does not depend merely on the State’s duty not to interfere, but may require positive measures of protection”
In the present case, the Court is called upon to weigh, on the one hand, the interest of the applicants to facilitate the sharing of the information in question and, on the other, the interest in protecting the rights of the copyright-holders.

Thus, the respondent State had to balance two competing interests which were both protected by the Convention.

In such a case, the State benefits from a wide margin of appreciation.
Balancing =
wide margin of appreciation

Reduces impact of ECHR
and esp. of scrutiny by the ECtHR

“Structural”: conflicting human rights
The width of the margin of appreciation afforded to States varies depending on a number of factors, among which the type of information at issue is of particular importance

“Situational” or “contextual”

“commercial speech”

“commercially run TPB”

“distributed material in respect of the applicants were convicted cannot reach the same level as that afforded to political expression and debate”
Reason 1: conflicting human rights
Reason 2: in casu no contribution to “political expression and debate”

Margin of appreciation is particularly wide

“Relevant and sufficient reasons” = enough
Proportionality: motivated in the light of the case (NTD)
even criminal punishment (prison sentences)
Copyright v Freedom of Expression : 2 - 0
1. Article 10 ECHR is ‘external’ factor: to be integrated in application of copyright

Enforcement of copyright that interferes with FoEI must be in accordance with Article 10 ECHR.

Exceptions, limitations IN Copyright Act must be sufficient (and sufficiently broad) to meet the needs of FoEI.
2. Wide margin for national authorities

But ECHR: binding, direct applicability in MS
Wide margin / conflicting HR does not exclude effective scrutiny by ECtHR - ECtHR GC Axel Springer 7/2/2012

Margin will be less wide in cases of
- political expression / public debate

3. Other relevant factors!

See case law ECtHR on Article 10 ECHR

Proportionality of interference
- ECtHR Ahmet Yildirim 18/12/2012
- CJEU Scarlet Ext. 24/11/2011

Is no abstract balancing, interference needs justification as ‘pressing social need’ / necessary in democratic society Art. 10 § 2
Contextualisation
Relevant criteria - Article 10 ECHR

- who
- what (content: political speech v commercial speech)
- about whom
- how (form)
- to whom
- when / why / where
- with what intention
- with what (possible) effect / impact / harm

+ procedural guarantees (judicial review)
+ proportionality (nature and severity of sanction)
+ alternatives? NTD?

+ chilling effect?
Conclusion

FoEI as ‘external’ factor in copyright (application/enforcement)

Weak impact Art. 10 ECHR so far
- conflicting HR
- ‘fair’ balance
- wide MoA

‘Added value’ of Article 10 is still to be demonstrated, but is virtual in cases of
- journalism, public debate
- parody/satire
- ‘fair use’
- disproportionate measures of enforcement of copyright
- disproportionate sanctions
Art. 10 ECHR vs. Art. 5,5
EC-Directive Copyright 2001/29/EG

3-step test

- exception is only applied in certain special cases
- which do not conflict with a normal exploitation of the work
- and do not unreasonably prejudice the legitimate interests of the rightholder

Perspective of Art. 10 ECHR is to be integrated in 3-step test of Art. 5,5 Dir. 2001/29
